2021 ANNUAL REPORT

The Warren Center is a nonprofit agency that advocates, serves and empowers the children and families impacted by developmental delays and disabilities.

A MESSAGE FROM OUR CEO

As we all experienced, 2021 was an unprecedented year full of challenges and uncertainty. But it was also a year of extraordinary generosity, gratitude, camaraderie, and love, all of which we experienced each day from the families we serve, our team of volunteers, our staff, and you – our community of supporters who stood by our side. We learned that early intervention does not stop for a pandemic and neither does our commitment to seeing every child reach their full potential.

I'll begin by recognizing our remarkable staff who have exceeded every expectation throughout this year. These dedicated and passionate professionals have gone above and beyond to provide both therapy services and support to families. Going virtual did not curve their momentum, not even the Texas ice storms stopped their dedication to our community.

They showed up each and every day, giving families in the midst of extraordinary circumstances the hope, care, and togetherness they needed most.

In July, we were honored to pioneer Early Intervention Day in Texas and received support and proclamations from the governor of Texas and three local mayors. The celebration culminated with our first annual Strong Start Virtual Summit – an online conference for caregivers and early intervention professionals, where past client and advocate, John Warren, was the keynote speaker.

Together, we also benefitted from our team's creativity and quick thinking, hosting both a virtual and inperson fantasy football fundraiser during the FY 21 fiscal.

And lastly, your support enabled us to begin autism evaluation services at the Center. We know that early identification and intervention can have a significant impact on the child's ability to learn new skills, as well as reduce the need for costly interventions over time. Many of the children in our community wait for 12 -18 months for an evaluation. We are proud to be able to offer this service, reduce barriers to intervention, and improve long-term outcomes for families.

Next year will bring a new strategic plan to the agency and I look ahead with hope and an even stronger commitment to fulfilling our mission; advocating, serving, and empowering children and families impacted by developmental delays and disabilities. Thank you for your continued partnership, support, and generosity

With Gratitude,

Amy Spawn

WARREN CENTER

Over fifty years ago, very few resources existed for parents of disabled children in Dallas County. With nowhere to turn for community-based services or help, families lacked support and their children had limited options in life. The Warren Center was created in 1968 and for decades, we have provided much-needed resources and care to children with disabilities and their families. Grassroots efforts and proven successes paved the way for an increase in community and parental awareness.

As our organization experienced growth, we began adapting our programs to meet the changing needs of families. Over the years, The Warren Center has given parents access to the resources their children needed, and more importantly, hope and support. We help children to reach their developmental goals through individualized therapy-based care and equip parents through monthly educational workshops and support groups so they can be confident advocates for their child.

Our Early Childhood Intervention (ECI) program for children age birth to three years old and Clinic Therapy Services for children age three to eight provides evaluations and personalized therapy sessions that include occupational and physical therapy, speech and language therapy, feeding and nutrition therapy, developmental therapy, and transition assistance to additional services.

We also help family's in our community with education and support services. These services equip families and caregivers through education, workshops, support meetings, and referrals to resources in the community.

JISSELLE'S STORY

Some people have the fortune of being born into families with large support systems. Others discover the joy of family later through the generosity and goodwill of others. For Baby Jisselle and her family, the true extent of the impact of a strong support system came from an unexpected referral to The Warren Center.

Jisselle's arrival began as a joyous surprise for her family. Her mother, Brenda, explains that while she already had two older children, discovering her pregnancy with Jisselle occurred during a challenging time as she reflected on the loss of her own mother.

"It was hard for me because this was my first pregnancy going through it without my mom," Brenda explained. "I was going through a hard time emotionally, mentally. And when I found out I was pregnant, I was scared at first, but then I was excited."

Brenda quickly delved into the excitement and promise of expecting a new baby girl. She began baby shopping and enjoying her prenatal checkups. She chose the name Jisselle (a lovely French word that means "pledge" or "promise") as all family members happily anticipated the birth.

And by all appearances, the pregnancy went smoothly. Jisselle was born at 39 weeks with no complications and no signs of anything abnormal. After a normal labor and delivery, they were allowed to leave the hospital a few days after the birth, and Brenda felt ecstatic. "She was my first baby girl. I have two older boys. Jisselle was my little girl, and she was a surprise for us. And I didn't know, but she was what I needed."

However, Jisselle's family soon faced the unexpected. During a six-month checkup, the doctor noticed that Jisselle wasn't holding her head up anymore. Jisselle received a referral to The Warren Center for early childhood intervention (ECI services).

This donation-supported program is for children ages birth to three years old. Through the program, The Warren Center assigned an ECI therapist who visited Jisselle's home and worked through developmental delays. The family saw the impact immediately.

"The therapist became a friend. ECI helped Jisselle so much. She started holding her head up. She started sitting up, which she couldn't do. She started rolling over," Brenda said. "The Warren Center helped us so much. I was so scared, I thought she was never going to be able to do any of it."

Upon the outbreak of COVID-19, Jisselle's family felt anxiety that the therapist would not be able to come to their house for in-person therapy anymore. However, The Warren Center was able to help Jisselle complete the ECI program through FaceTime. And after ECI, the therapists assured Brenda that Jisselle could still receive services through the clinic program at The Warren Center. Jisselle went on to enroll in occupational therapy, physical therapy, and speech therapy.

Occupational therapist, Jenna Zansler, explained that she did the initial assessment for Jisselle online due to COVID-19 lockdown. She then met Jisselle after restrictions lifted and observed Jisselle's transformation firsthand.

"She was able to start coming into the office for therapy sessions. Initially she was very upset. But then one day it just all turned around, and she was happy and anxious to try everything," Zansler said. "Never complained and never seemed to tire. It's been very fun to see her go from someone who wasn't interested in anything to someone who is desperately interested in everything."

Within days, Jisselle's mother noticed the improvements as well. "After COVID eased and we were able to come to therapy at The Warren Center, after only a week I started to see a difference in Jisselle," she said. "Jisselle started reaching for things, she started moving across the floor] which she had never done. All these therapies she received at The Warren Center have helped her and our family so much."

Brenda explained that while Jisselle has received tests from neurologists, neurosurgeons, and geneticists, they have not been able to diagnose her. So, the therapists must work with a general assessment of global developmental delays.

The Warren Center rose to the challenge with the use of a TheraSuit (an orthotic suit that provides strength motor support for children who cannot yet support themselves). It turns out that Jisselle was the perfect candidate for this device to work on her abdominal strength, sitting, standing, and moving efficiently. Jisselle gets excited when she sees the device and knows that it is helping her.

Timothy Villa, a speech-language pathologist at The Warren Center, explained that despite the lack of concrete diagnosis, the team of therapists worked hard to make Jisselle comfortable and increase engagement in her sessions." When she first started with us, she had trouble just tolerating the session," Villa explained. "Her three therapists worked together to make her comfortable. Once we were able to do that, now she's happy.

She leans toward us to get her, she is ready to come in, and she's happy to be in these sessions."

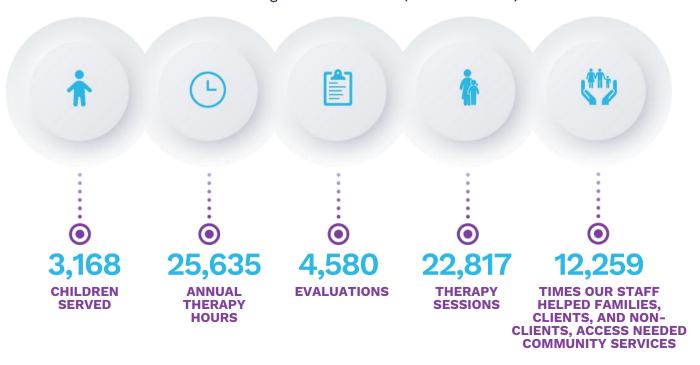

With the help of The Warren Center, Jisselle uses a speech-generating device to select multiple activities per session. Her social skills have improved so that she greets people with a wave and understands the normal flow of people entering and leaving the room. She has playfulness and inside jokes toward each therapist, and this loving and cheerful attitude has not gone unnoticed.

"Jisselle is a very happy girl. She is always laughing, and she has a laugh that makes her brothers laugh," her mother Brenda says. "She brings joy to everyone she sees."

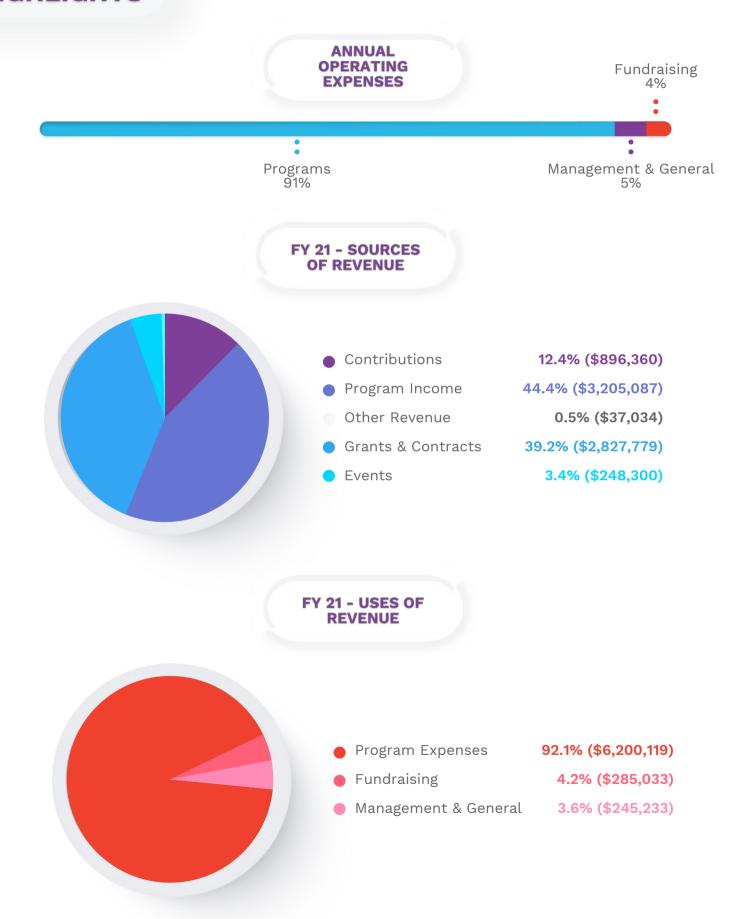

"I don't know where my daughter would be without The Warren Center," Brenda admits. "Everyone here treats us like we've known each other forever. And it feels great because I don't even have that support from family. The Warren Center is pretty much my family, my support group. I don't have that at home. The Warren Center has helped us be a complete family with Jisselle."

WHAT YOU MADE POSSIBLE

Even with lingering challenges created by a global pandemic, you made it possible for us to continue to provide professional evaluations, therapy services and support to children with special needs and their families during Fiscal Year 2021 (9.1.20 – 8.31.21).
