A Message From Our CEO

Fiscal Year 2022 was a remarkable year of exponential growth for The Warren Center as we continue to expand our reach to provide professional evaluations, therapy services and support to children and families impacted by developmental delays and disabilities. When I first started with The Warren Center over 19 years ago, our program served only 200 children every week. In 2022, we provided services to over 1300 children weekly.

This is possible because of you.

In 2022, you helped us deliver almost 35,000 hours of therapy and provide programs to families focused on improving their quality of life and emotional well-being.

This growth has made increasing operational efficiencies essential. As a result, we welcomed Brandy Lindsey, our new Chief Operation Officer, to the team. With over a decade of experience in nonprofit operations, the addition further strengthens our team and our mission. Our Chief Marketing Officer, Asriel Eford, stepped into the role of Chief Advancement Officer streamlining our brand strategy, public outreach and fundraising efforts into one cohesive effort.

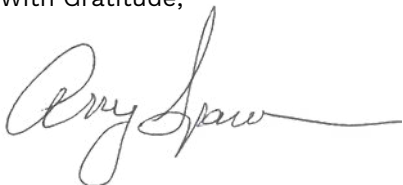

Throughout the year, we strategically retrofitted our organization to expand our capabilities, strengthen our organizational infrastructure and keep pace with the ever-increasing needs of our community. Our team reexamined our mission, operations and aspirations and a new strategic plan was born. Our updated strategy optimizes our organizational structure, enhances our fundraising strategy and improves our client service model.

We formalized our commitment to enhancing our service model by securing our newest campus in Irving, formally opening in 2023. The new 8,000 sq. ft. location features more space for collaborative care, and includes five telehealth rooms, a service greatly expanded since the Covid-19 pandemic.

What I love most about our organization is that even in the midst of strategic changes and new initiatives – our core mission and drive has remained the same – to advocate, serve and empower the children and families in our community impacted by developmental delays and disabilities. The year 2023 marks 55 years of The Warren Center's service to the community. This is a direct reflection of your continued support.

On behalf of thousands of children and families whose lives are enhanced by your support, thank you.

With Gratitude,

Amy Spawn
CEO, The Warren Center

Quote:

"We are proud to be able to offer services, reduce barriers to intervention, and improve long-term outcomes for families."

About The Warren Center

Over fifty years ago, very few resources existed for parents of disabled children in Dallas County. With nowhere to turn for community-based services or help, families lacked support and their children had limited options in life. The Warren Center was created in 1968 and for decades, we have provided much-needed resources and care to children with disabilities and their families. Grassroots efforts and proven successes paved the way for an increase in community and parental awareness.

As our organization experienced growth, we began adapting our programs to meet the changing needs of families. Over the years, The Warren Center has given parents access to the resources their children needed, and more importantly, hope and support. We help children to reach their developmental goals through individualized therapy-based care and equip parents through monthly educational workshops and support groups so they can be confident advocates for their child.

Our Early Childhood Intervention (ECI) program for children age birth to three years old and Clinic Therapy Services for children age three to eight provides evaluations and personalized therapy sessions that include occupational and physical therapy, speech and language therapy, feeding and nutrition therapy, developmental therapy, and transition assistance to additional services.

We also help family's in our community with education and support services. These services equip families and caregivers through education, workshops, support meetings, and referrals to resources in the community.

Siena's Story

From one chapter of not knowing if their child would make it due to myotonic muscular dystrophy, to the next chapter of watching their precious baby grow and prevail, Baby Siena's parents have a lot to be proud of.

Siena recently celebrated a big milestone – her first birthday. Siena, who is the youngest of five, was diagnosed with myotonic muscular dystrophy, which is a condition her parents, Meghan and Daniel, said they did not know she was going to have.

Siena was born with low muscle tone and had some breathing issues, so she went straight to the NICU so doctors could figure out what was going on. Right away, her mom pumped milk for the baby and provided skin-to-skin contact, but said it was initially “very difficult.”

“It was hard to bond with her the same way that I did with the other kids just because she was so fragile we didn't know what was going on,” Meghan said.

Siena remained in the NICU for a few weeks until her parents learned about her genetic diagnosis.

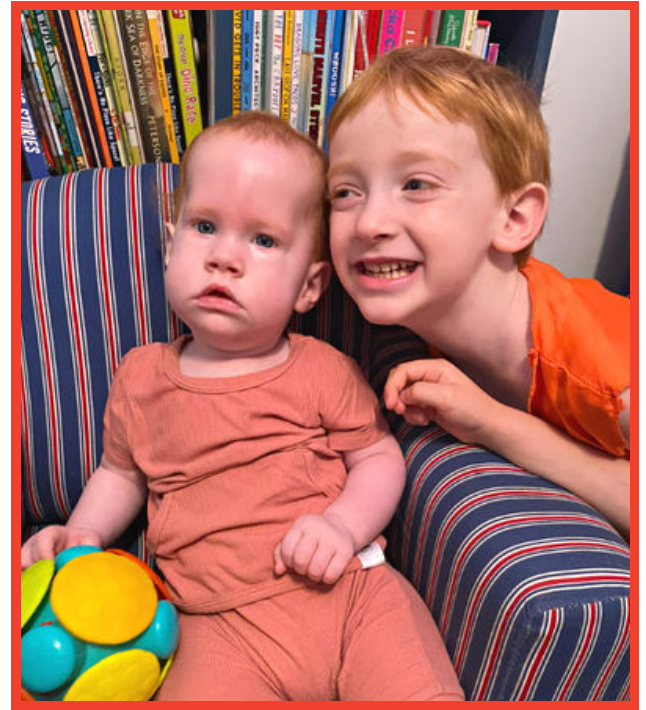

According to Siena's mom, they then spoke with her doctor's to put her on palliative care. Siena's doctors weren't sure if she was going to make it, so they transitioned her to a specialty care facility, where family members were invited to say their farewells to Siena.

However, Siena had other plans. She started breathing fine on her own, shortly after her doctors said they weren't sure she was going to make it.

Siena's Story

“We’ve decided in our house that ‘plan’ is definitely a four letter word that we’re not allowed to say anymore because every time we make a plan, Siena has a different plan for us and for her, so she got stronger every single day,” Meghan said.

Once Siena was discharged from the hospital and sent home, Meghan and Daniel looked up early childhood intervention services online and discovered The Warren Center. They contacted The Warren Center to see if there was anything they could do for Siena. They brought Baby Siena to The Warren Center for an evaluation. At the time, Siena was still wearing full-leg casts for her clubfoot.

They were introduced to physical therapist, Sam, at The Warren Center. Meghan said Sam started Siena’s evaluation and began manipulating Siena’s body in ways that she and Daniel had not done before because they were trying to be delicate with her.

“I knew then that it would be the perfect fit. Sam was so confident. She was asking all the right questions. She was handling Siena in a way that, you know, even we probably weren’t at that time,” Meghan said.

“What struck me about Sam is how confident she was. It didn’t matter that Siena had this relatively rare diagnosis. She was just like, ‘this is what we’re going to do. This is what we need to do,’” Daniel said.

Sam visits Siena at her home for therapy once a week. Siena’s parents believe having the therapy at their home is the best environment possible for Siena. Sam not only works with Siena, but also works with Siena’s parents to show them the best physical therapy techniques that they can implement outside of the therapy session.

Siena also began receiving speech therapy at her home through The Warren Center.

A moment Siena’s parents will always remember was when Siena began smiling. Because Siena had low muscle tone when she first came home, she didn’t exhibit facial expressions right away. After working with The Warren Center for 10 months, they’ve noticed the corners of her mouth have slowly turned up a bit as she smiles at her parents and at Sam.

Siena's Story

Meghan and Daniel began noticing Siena's upper extremity and lower extremity strength has improved week to week while working with Sam. She's now able to prop herself up with one arm, which is something she couldn't do before working with The Warren Center. She can also now roll to the side and roll over on her stomach.

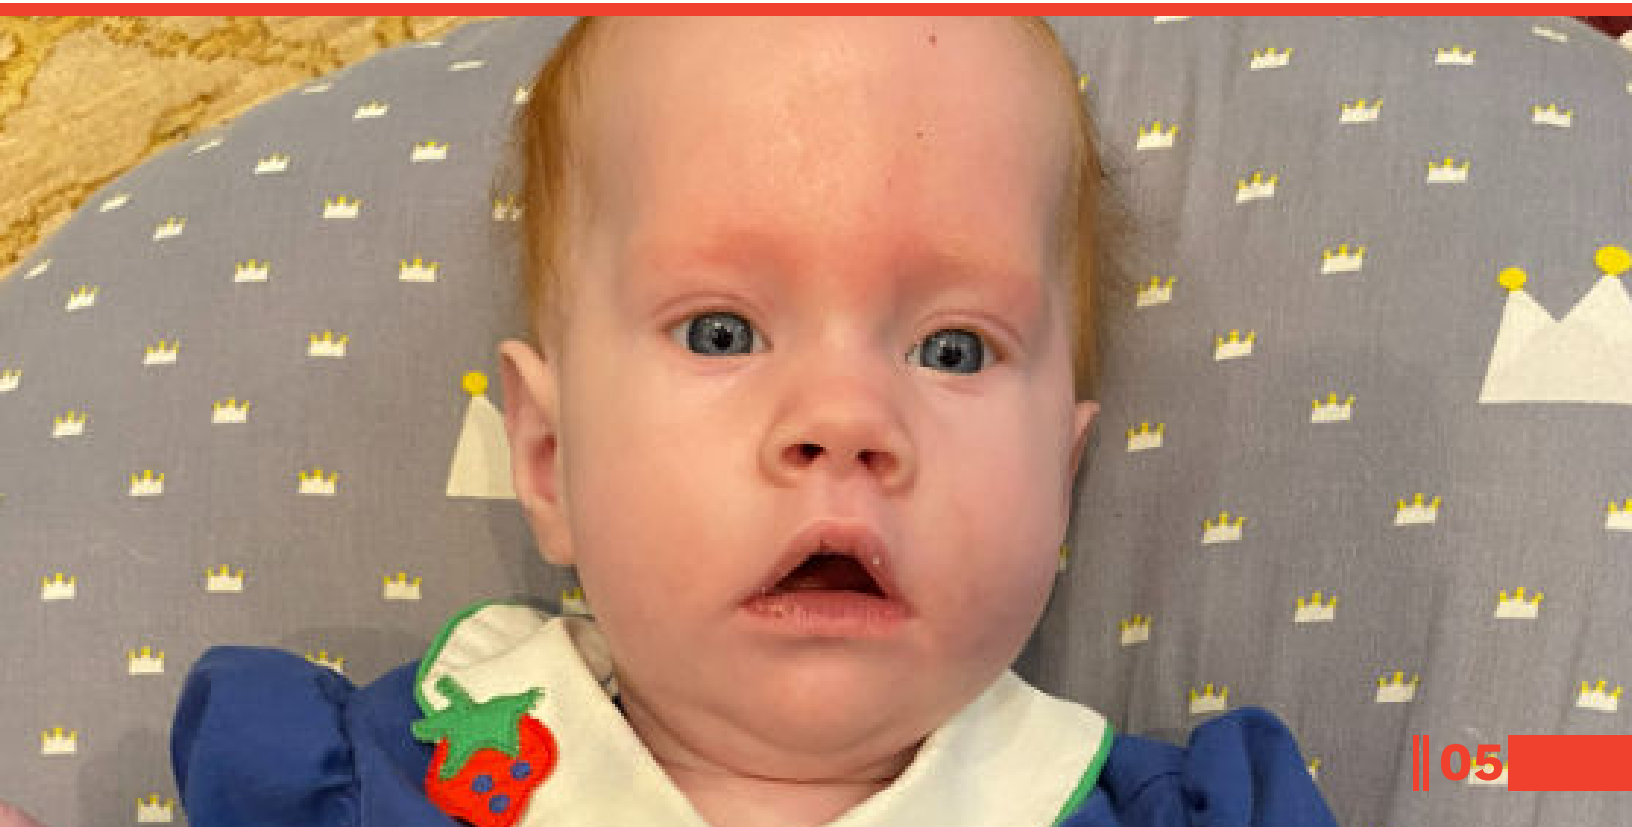

"We've always used the phrase 'baby steps' with all of our other children and it's even so more the case with Siena," Daniel said. "The steps are really small and it's not going to be as large as our other children, but she is going to make progress and she's going to have these improvements and it's been a joy to watch."

Meghan said being able to teach Siena new things, like sign language, has helped her and Daniel develop a stronger relationship with her.

"One thing that everyone at The Warren Center has helped inject at least into me is positivity and to just look past the diagnosis and see Siena for the wonderful human being she is, with the potential that she has now," Daniel said.

"We are very blessed to be able to go anywhere we want for therapy for Siena and we chose The Warren Center and we will every single time. They have so many wonderful people there doing such a good job and it's really a benefit for our whole family," Meghan said.

'She got stronger every single day': Siena inspires others with her determination

WHAT YOU MADE POSSIBLE

Even with lingering challenges created by a global pandemic, you made it possible for us to continue to provide professional evaluations, therapy services and support to children with special needs and their families during Fiscal Year 2022 (9.1.21 – 8.31.22).
